Forty-Three Lives Are Saved As German Ship Burns, Sinks In Ocean

Lone Passenger, Identity Unknown, Also Saved When German Lloyd Freighter Catches Fire and Goes To Bottom —Ocean Lighted-up For Many Miles By Conflagration Aboard Ship—Rescue Made Easy By Calm Sea and Light.

LONDON, July 18.—In a dramatic mid-ocean rescue, the sole passenger and 42 members of the crew of the North German Lloyd freighter Targis were saved from death by a British steamer today when the Targis burned and sank 800 miles east of Bermuda.

The Targis, a steel vessel of 5,952 tons, ordinarily carries between 14 and 18 passengers as supercargo. At the offices of the North German Lloyd line here, however, it was said that only one passenger was aboard in addition to the crew.

The rescue was effected by the British freighter Rangitoto, registered at Auckland, N. Z.

News of the rescue was contained in brief wireless messages from the master of the Rangitoto, which answered the Targis' call for help late last night. The Rangitoto, a freighter of 985 tons gross, found the Targis ablaze, with fire burning fiercely in three of her holds.

Small boats were put out from the Rangitoto, and the single passenger taken aboard the rescue ship. The crew remained aboard the burning liner in an effort to extinguish the flames.

STAY WITH SHIP

For several hours the crew of the Targis worked to save their vessel, wireless messages revealed, while the midnight sky was lit for miles around by the flickering glare of the burning cargo.

When at length the blaze became hopelessly out of control, the captain of the Targis abandoned efforts to save his ship, and the crew took to the boats. They were taken aboard the Rangitoto which continued to stand by until the Targis, gutted by the flames from stem to stern, finally slipped beneath the waves.

The captain of the Rangitoto then reported to his head offices that the Targis had sunk, that the passenger and crew had been rescued safely, and that he was proceeding to Southampton immediately. The vessel is due at that port on July 24.

FAIL TO STATE CAUSE

The terse and characteristic wireless reports from the master of the Rangitoto failed to reveal the cause of the Targis' blaze. Both ships were equipped with wireless, but news of the Targis' difficulty was not received until hours after the fire had broken out in her hold, endangering the crew and the passenger who had shipped as supercargo.

While the freighter caught fire in a busy steamer lane, the Rangitoto apparently was the only vessel sufficiently near to respond to her frantic appeals for assistance. When the British vessel reached the scene the fire had gained such headway that there appeared little hope of saving the Targis, but the crew, true to the traditions of the sea, refused to give up the ship until every last chance of saving her had been exhausted.

The Targis, which plies with freight between the United States and Germany, was journeying eastward when the fire broke out. She was due at her home port of Bremen on July 27.

The identity of the Targis' single passenger was not known here. First reports stated that 14 and 18 persons over and above the crew were aboard the vessel, and it was reported that one of them was an American. Efforts to confirm this report were futile.

The meagre messages from the captain of the Rangitoto gave no intimation of the dramatic scene which must have transpired when the crew, exhausted and smoke-grimed from their heroic battle with the flames gave up their ship and launced small boats on the turbulent ocean to board the Rangitoto.

HAD NO DIFFICULTY

From the captain's messages, it appeared no difficulty was encountered in launching lifeboats and rescuing the crew. Shipping authorities here paid tribute to the quick action of the Rangitoto's master in reaching the scene and aiding in getting the situation so well in hand that the mid-ocean blaze took no toll of life.

The successful rescue work was made possible, it is believed, by the fact calm weather prevailed at the time of the disaster. The blaze from the Targis' hold, illuminating the ocean in a wide red swath of light made easier the task of rescue workers.

BULLETIN

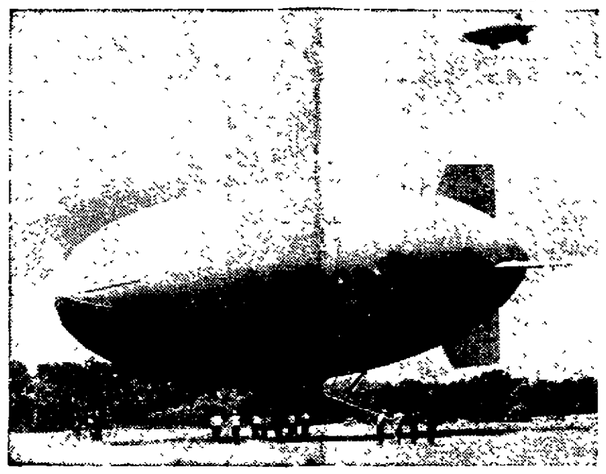
'Air Day' Creating Great Amount of Interest in City and Pickaway-Co



Goodyear Blimp, One of Fine Fleet, To Be Sent Here Under Auspices of Tire and Repair Co.—Sohio II Will Also Take Part In Program on July 24 at Foresman Field.

Residents of Circleville and vicinity are interested in the development of the city's many enterprises such as its mills, strawboard, canning plants, pork packing concern, broom factory, and naturally no end of pride is taken in these activities by our people.

Maybe some day Circleville will have airplane and airship plants, but until the city does expand to take in those enterprises we must be content with seeing the airships and airplanes as they come and go.

Unusual interest has been aroused by the announcement made by the Circleville Tire & Repair Company of the scheduling of a Goodyear airship for our city on Thursday, July 24, and it was through the co-operation of the Goodyear dealer that arrangements were made to bring the ship to Circleville for a day's visit, during which time many of our folks will have their 'first opportunity to see an airship at close range.'

It is also announced that a plan was agreed whereby the residents of the city who desire to take a ride in the airship may do so at a nominal cost. Already many reservation have been made.

The Goodyear fleet of six ships was put into service primarily to demonstrate the practicability, comfort and convenience of lighter-than-air transportation and to bring out the safety factor.

In the year 1929 the ships flew approximately 150,000 miles and carried more than 10,000 passengers, without even so much as jarring a passenger.

Four ships are based at Akron, one is now operating in New England and one is on the Pacific coast. One of the ships at Akron will leave this week for St. Louis territory, based at Scott Field, Ill., where there is a government hanger.

For ticket reservations you should see Mr. Nelson at once as the supply is limited.

ROTARY HEARS W. ROBINSON

Rotarians at their meeting Thursday noon listened to a splendid talk by one of their members, Ward Robinson of the Circle City Dairy. "Having spent 24 years of my life in school and teaching school," he stated, "we sometimes wonder when the child first starts serious thinking. Many children at the age of four and five ask questions that are positive proof that they have been thinking of things that have been major questions before scientists," he said.

He cited several examples of such incidents which showed the serious thinking that children do at a young age.

"In school, the teachers are the ones who have the problem with children and it should be their duty to help them conscientiously with their work. Many times a child can do wonders with the right kind of a teacher and it certainly is for the teacher to study each child and solve the problems individually."

Speaking of the efficiency of schools, Mr. Robinson said that a teacher to maintain efficiency and teach children properly should not have more than 25 in a room. With larger numbers records show a larger number of failures, which is not fair to the child, neither for the city that compels them to go to school.

The curriculum of the school year is oftentimes interrupted with things other than their usual studies, laying emphasis on the work necessary to have the school parade, during the Pumpkin Show, and such things again help to reduce the efficiency of the children, the teachers and the school as a whole.

Next week the Rotary Club meets at the Pickaway Country Club, with the Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce and the local chapter of the N A A as part of the Air Day program

ASK $25,000 FOR DAUGHTER'S DEATH

Mr. and Mrs Albert Zwicker, former residents of this city parents of Miss Mary Zwicker aged 16, who was fatally injured in an auto collision at Mound and Fifth-sts, Columbus May 25, filed suit in the Franklin-co courts Wednesday against Howard C Hartman of Columbus for $25,000 damages

Miss Zwicker, grand-daughter of Mrs. Fannie Zwicker, E. Main-st., this city died May 30, as the result of her injuries.

Property Loss Is Near $25,000, Barns, Grains Are Ruined On Farms

Farm of Mrs. Flora Bryant, Near New Holland, Hit Hardest By Conflagrations, When Barn, Three Other Buildings Burn; Praise Williamsport Fire Department; Cedar Hill, Meade and Atlanta Also Visited.

P 1—FIRES.

Fire, in all its fury, swept through Pickaway-co late Thursday afternoon and night when no less than four conflagrations, three of them great ones, were reported. Damage, in the four fires, placed at a low estimate will probably reach $25,000, only a part of which is insured.

Probably the greatest fire of the day was at the homestead of Mrs. Flora Bryant, one mile east of New Holland which was discovered at 4:30 p. m. after it had made rapid headway. The blaze spread to an adjoining building and for a short time even theatened the residence.

Damage at this place is estimated at between $12,000 and $15,000.

The buildings destroyed by the fire were the large barn, valued at $2,500 with contents at $1,500; a double corn crib, valued at $2,000 with contents, including new crops, valued at $1,500; a garage valued at $1,000 with $500 damage and a tool and feed shed valued at $1,500 with contents of $1,000. Among the contents of these buildings destroyed by the blaze were a new lot of hay, wheat, corn, newly purchased feeds and many farm implements.

GRAIN LOSS GREAT

The loss is covered by insurance on the buildings but the hay, grain and implements will make a great loss.

The home is occupied by Mrs. Flora Bryant and her daughter, Mrs. Harry Heath and her husband. Mr. Heath, who worked diligently and bravely through the holocaust, was overcome by the heat and was placed under the care of a physician.

The Williamsport fire department was called and in less than 15 minutes from the time they started, had chemicals pouring on the buildings nearest the residence. They were badly hampered by the lack of sufficient water supply. After the house was free from danger, the members of the fire department directed a large stream of water from a large tank on the farm on a tool and feed shed where the fire had gained considerable headway. Here again the water supply was soon exhausted, but the firemen had the blaze under control. A practically new tractor was hauled from the burning tool shed.

PRAISE FIREMEN

Residents of New Holland and that vicinity are praising the Williamsport Community Fire Department and its fire chief, C. E. Hill, for their work in fighting the blaze. The fire department sped rapidly to the scene of the blaze, five miles distant, and worked feverishly trying to protect the residence until all chances of the home catching fire were eliminated.

It is unknown how the fire started although a belief has been forwarded that spontaneous combustion was the cause.

The second large fire of the day was at the farm of Joe Hedges on the Cedar Hill pike, five miles north of Amanda where the large round barn was completely destroyed by the blaze. Damage here is thought to be near $5,000.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Homer Blue, the wife of a tenant on the farm, who rose from her bed at 11:30 p. m. to attend to a baby, when she heard the roar of the fire. She awakened her husband, who looked out a window to discover the barn afire.

The fire could be seen for many miles around and residents from this city, from Lithopolis, Amanda, Lancaster, Ashville and Canal Winchester drove to the scene of the fire. The barn burned like tender and before the Amanda fire department could arrive the blaze was far beyond control.

PREVENT SPREAD

The village firemen fought to prevent the fire from spreading to any other buildings in which they succeeded. The barn was completely burned to the ground. Farm implements were destroyed, although furtunately only a small portion of farm produce had been placed in the barn.

No livestock was in the barn to the time. The remains of the barn were still smouldering at noon Friday.

The third disaster of the day was at the home of Mrs. Adam Rhil, near Meade, which started at about 9 p. m. Thursday and did damage of about $3,000 when the large barn, a large quantity of wheat, hay and farm implements were destroyed.

Although the cause of this fire is unknown it is thought spontaneous combustion was responsible.

No assistance of any kind could be offered to help fight the fire for there was no water supply, sufficient to fight it and no fire department available.

The barn was completely leveled.

STRAW DESTROYED

The fourth fire of the evening was at the home of C. E. Brown, near Atlanta, an the Lincoln Kirkpatrick farm, where a straw-stack burned to the ground. The value placed on the loss is $200.

The fire, which is fully covered by insurance, burned early Thursday evening.

With no rain of any consequence falling in Pickaway-co this summer, everything is extremely dry, making fire hazards throughout the city and county much greater than usual. Everyone should take great precaution against this great fire hazard.

FARM RELIEF MAJOR ISSUE OF CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Democrats today added "farm relief" to the array of issues which they will carry to the country durin the next four months in an effort to elect a Democratic Congress.

With wheat prices on the toboggan, other farm commodities selling at the lowest prices in years, and the year-old farm board refusing to buy any more grain to stabilize the market, the Democrats have leaped avidly for the old issue.

The national Democratic executive, committee, which has hopes of overturning the big Republican majorities in both houses in November, broadcast throughout the grain-belt today the first of a series of biting statements on the farm situation. It was issued in the name of Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas, who has a reputation for savage satire.

"TELLING HOW"

"They," said Caraway, referring to the administration, "are now telling the farmer that his only relief is to cut down production. What he is to do with his idle land, how he is to pay taxes and interest seems outside the ken of these advice givers. The administration is only concerned in having the farmer produce less and receive less. Certainly it has achieved the latter.

"The President admits that farm relief under the federal farm board is a failure. He seems to intimate that Congress in some mysterious way is responsible for this collapse. He may possibly be correct, because Congress never believed in the provisions of this law, but yielded upon his insistence, and therefore may be chargeable with the present deplorable condition.

"Congress should have stood firm in its demand that the debenture be included.

WANTS RELIEF

"If the President really wants to help agriculture let him reconvene the House and let Congress enact legislation that will bring real relief. The debenture will cost less than the present experiment and stabilize the price of farm products."

The emphasis on the debenture plan, which President Hoover denounced as economically unsound, and which he threatened to veto if Congress adopted it, was considered rather significant. The plan is to be revived as soon as Congress meets again, and unless there is marked recovery in the farm commodity markest before December its almost certainly will be adopted. The Senate has twice approved it in the past year, only to have the well-disciplined house reject it at the instance of Mr. Hoover.

Goodyear Blimp, One of Fine Fleet, To Be Sent Here Under Auspices of Tire and Repair Co.—Sohio II Will Also Take Part In Program on July 24 at Foresman Field.

Residents of Circleville and vicinity are interested in the development of the city's many enterprises such as its mills, strawboard, canning plants, pork packing concern, broom factory, and naturally no end of pride is taken in these activities by our people.

Maybe some day Circleville will have airplane and airship plants, but until the city does expand to take in those enterprises we must be content with seeing the airships and airplanes as they come and go.

Unusual interest has been aroused by the announcement made by the Circleville Tire & Repair Company of the scheduling of a Goodyear airship for our city on Thursday, July 24, and it was through the co-operation of the Goodyear dealer that arrangements were made to bring the ship to Circleville for a day's visit, during which time many of our folks will have their 'first opportunity to see an airship at close range.'

It is also announced that a p lan was agreed whereby the residents of the city who desire to take a ride in the airship may do so at a nominal cost. Already many reservation have been made.

The Goodyear fleet of six ships was put into service primarily to demonstrate the practicability, comfort and convenience of lighter-than-air transportation and to bring out the safety factor.

In the year 1929 the ships flew approximately 150,000 miles and carried more than 10,000 passengers, without even so much as jarring a passenger.

Four ships are based at Akron, one is now operating in New England and one is on the Pacific coast. One of the ships at Akron will leave this week for St. Louis territory, based at Scott Field, Ill., where there is a government hanger.

For ticket reservations you should see Mr. Nelson at once as the supply is limited.

CHILDREN TAKEN TO COUNTY HOME

Missouri, Terry and Era Skeggs, dependent children of Henry Skeggs, R. F. D., this city, were taken to the Children's Home by L. M. Brown, probation officer Thursday, due to the physical condition of their mother who was unable to care for the children.

The ages of the children are 10, 8 and 4.

ROTARY HEARS W. ROBINSON

Rotarians at their meeting Thursday noon listened to a splendid talk by one of their members, Ward Robinson of the Circle City Dairy. "Having spent 24 years of my life in school and teaching school," he stated, "we sometimes wonder when the child first starts serious thinking. Many children at the age of four and five ask questions that are positive proof that they have been thinking of things that have been major questions before scientists," he said.

He cited several examples of such incidents which showed the serious thinking that children do at a young age.

"In school, the teachers are the ones who have the problem with children and it should be their duty to help them conscientiously with their work. Many times a child can do wonders with the right kind of a teacher and it certainly is for the teacher to study each child and solve the problems individually."

Speaking of the efficiency of schools, Mr. Robinson said that a teacher to maintain efficiency and teach children properly should not have more than 25 in a room. With larger numbers records show a larger number of failures, which is not fair to the child, neither for the city that compels them to go to school.

The curriculum of the school year is oftentimes interrupted with things other than their usual studies, laying emphasis on the work necessary to have the school parade, during the Pumpkin Show, and such things again help to reduce the efficiency of the children, the teachers and the school as a whole.

Next week the Rotary Club meets at the Pickaway Country Club, with the Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce and the local chapter of the N. A. A. as part of the Air Day program.

ASK $25,000 FOR DAUGHTER'S DEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Zwicker, former residents of this city, parents of Miss Mary Zwicker, aged 16, who was fatally injured in an auto collision at Mound and Fifth-sts, Columbus May 25, filed suit in the Franklin-co courts Wednesday against Howard C. Hartman of Columbus for $25,000 damages.

Miss Zwicker, grand-daughter of Mrs. Fannie Zwicker, E. Main-st, this city died May 30, as the result of her injuries.

Property Loss Is Near $25,000, Barns, Grains Are Ruined On Farms

Farm of Mrs. Flora Bryant, Near New Holland, Hit Hardest By Conflagrations, When Barn, Three Other Buildings Burn; Praise Williamsport Fire Department; Cedar Hill, Meade and Atlanta Also Visited.

P 1—FIRES..

Fire, in all its fury, swept through Pickaway-co late Thursday afternoon and night when no less than four conflagrations, three of them great ones, were reported. Damage, in the four fires, placed at a low estimate will probably reach $25,000, only a part of which is insured.

Probably the greatest fire of the day was at the homestead of Mrs. Flora Bryant, one mile east of New Holland which was discovered at 4:30 p. m. after it had made rapid headway. The blaze spread to an adjoining building and for a short time even theatened the residence.

Damage at this place is estimated at between $12,000 and $15,000.

The buildings destroyed by the fire were the large barn, valued at $2,500 with contents at $1,500; a double corn crib, valued at $2,000 with contents, including new crops, valued at $1,500; a garage valued at $1,000 with $500 damage and a tool and feed shed valued at $1,500 with contents of $1,000. Among the contents of these buildings destroyed by the blaze were a new lot of hay, wheat, corn, newly purchased feeds and many farm implements.

GRAIN LOSS GREAT

The loss is covered by insurance on the buildings but the hay, grain and implements will make a great loss.

The home is occupied by Mrs. Flora Bryant and her daughter, Mrs. Harry Heath and her husband. Mr. Heath, who worked diligently and bravely through the holocaust, was overcome by the heat and was placed under the care of a physician.

The Williamsport fire department was called and in less than 15 minutes from the time they started, had chemicals pouring on the buildings nearest the residence. They were badly hampered by the lack of sufficient water supply. After the house was free from danger, the members of the fire department directed a large stream of water from a large tank on the farm on a tool and feed shed where the fire had gained considerable headway. Here again the water supply was soon exhausted, but the firemen had the blaze under control. A practically new tractor was hauled from the burning tool shed.

PRAISE FIREMEN

Residents of New Holland and that vicinity are praising the Williamsport Community Fire Department and its fire chief, C. E. Hill, for their work in fighting the blaze. The fire department sped rapidly to the scene of the blaze, five miles distant, and worked feverishly trying to protect the residence until all chances of the home catching fire were eliminated.

It is unknown how the fire started although a belief has been forwarded that spohtaneous combustion was the cause.

The second large fire of the day was at the farm of Joe Hedges on the Cedar Hill pike five miles north of Amanda where the large round barn was completely destroyed by the blaze. Damage here is thought to be near $5,000.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Homer Blue, the wife of a tenant on the farm, who rose from her bed at 11:30 p. m. to attend to a baby, when she heard the roar of the fire. She awakened her husband, who looked out a window to discover the barn afire.

The fire could be seen for many miles around and residents from this city, from Lithopolis, Amanda, Lancaster, Ashville and Canal Winchester drove to the scene of the fire. The barn burned like tender and before the Amanda fire department could arrive the blaze was far beyond control.

PREVENT SPREAD

The village firemen fought to prevent the fire from spreading to any other buildings in which they succeeded. The barn was completely burned to the ground. Farm implements were destroyed, although furtunately only a small portion of farm produce had been placed in the barn.

No livestock was in the barn te the time. The remains of the barn were still smouldering at noon Friday.

The third disaster of the day was at the home of Mrs. Adam Rhil, near Meade, which started at about 9 p. m. Thursday and did damage of about $3,000 when the large barn, a large quantity of wheat, hay and farm implements were destroyed.

Although the cause of this fire is unknown it is thought spontaneous combustion was responible.

No assistance of any kind could be offered to help fight the fire for there was no water supply, sufficient to fight it and no fire department available.

The barn was completely leveled.

STRAW DESTROYED

The fourth fire of the evening was at the home of C. E. Brown, near Atlanta, an the Lincoln Kirkpatrick farm, where a straw-stack burned to the ground. The value placed on the loss is $200.

The fire, which is fully covered by insurance, burned early Thursday evening.

With no rain of any consequence falling in Pickaway-co this summer, everything is extremely dry, making fire hazards throughout the city and county much greater than usual. Everyone should take great precaution against this great fire hazard.

FARM RELIEF MAJOR ISSUE OF CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Democrats today added "farm relief" to the array of issues which they will carry to the country durin the next four months in an effort to elect a Democratic Congress.

With wheat prices on the toboggan, other farm commodities selling at the lowest prices in years, and the year-old farm board refusing to buy any more grain to stabilize the market, the Democrats have leaped avidly for the old issue.

The national Democratic executive, committee, which has hopes of overturning the big Republican majorities in both houses in November, broadcast throughout the grain-belt today the first of a series of biting statements on the farm situation. It was issued in the name of Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas, who has a reputation for savage satire.

"TELLING HOW"

"They," said Caraway, referring to the administration, "are now telling the farmer that his only relief is to cut down production. What he is to do with his idle land, how he is to pay taxes and interest seems outside the ken of these advice givers. The administration is only concerned in having the farmer produce less and receive less. Certainly it has achieved the latter.

"The President admits that farm relief under the federal farm board is a failure. He seems to intimate that Congress in some mysterious way is responsible for this collapse. He may possibly be correct, because Congress never believed in the provisions of this law, but yielded upon his insistence, and therefore may be chargeable with the present deplorable condition.

"Congress should have stood firm in its demand that the debenture be included.

WANTS RELIEF

"If the President really wants to help agriculture let him reconvene the House and let Congress enact legislation that will bring real relief. The debenture will cost less than the present experiment and stabilize the price of farm products."

The emphasis on the debenture plan, which President Hoover denounced as economically unsound, and which he threatened to veto if Congress adopted it, was considered rather significant. The plan is to be revived as soon as Congress meets again, and unless there is marked recovery in the farm commodity markest before December its almost certainly will be adopted. The Senate has twice approved it in the past year, only to have the well-disciplined house reject it at the instance of Mr. Hoover.

AVIATION WORKING ON SOLID LINES, ADVANCEMENT CERTAIN

NEW YORK—Like other industries, aviation has felt to some extent the effect of the general business recession but it is working on solid, constructive lines and its future is promising, according to the viewpoint expressed today by Thomas L. Hill, president of the American society for the promotion of aviation.

The governments, in Mr. Hill's opinion, could stimulate the aviation industry by cooperating with other air clubs formed in various parts of the country. Nearly 1,000 such clubs, he said, have been organized in various communities in the last two years. Many of the members lack finances, although they are thoroughly "air minded." Consequently, Hill is a warm advocate of the bill introduced by Senator Thomas B. Schall of Minnesota to have Congress annually appropriate $40,000,000 to furnish airplanes gratis to the flying clubs of the nations.

"Such an appropriation would be a good investment for the government from the standpoint of national defense and at the same time would stimulate the aviation industry," said Mr. Hill in an interview with International News Service. "I figure that by the end of five years 250,000 persons, at least, would be taught to fly and they would form the nucleus of a great reserve of flyers available for a national emergency. This $40,000,000 is only a drop in the bucket compared to what is spent for national defense. The United States spends approximately $850,000,000 annually for the army and the navy."

Hill said that the 1,000 air clubs he referred to have, on the average, about twenty members. They are all potential buyers of planes. The general tightening up in the business world has checked somewhat, he explained, the purchasing of planes by individuals, especially among those of moderate means. Not as many students are going to school to learn flying as some time back because they are sticking closer to their regular jobs. The economic depression has been responsible, too, for a decline in the number of people who go on airplane rides.

"The aviation industry," Hill explained, "has dug in. It is solidly intrenched in spite of the wave of publicity seekers and others who have been trading on aviation. It is now on a solid, constructive basis. I am confident that each succeeding year it will record a gain and that fifteen years from now millions of people will be using airplanes without any more qualms than they do today in using automobiles."

Hill's size-up of the aviation industry seems to be borne out, especially as regards its bright future, by information obtained in other sources.

Passenger carrying airplanes in the United States are now flying 91 361 miles a day and are serving 226 communities on 263 regular schedules, according to the semi-annual report of the American Air Transport Association A year ago but 61,025 miles were being flown and passenger car ying aircraft stopped daily at only 151 points.

Thirty-nine companies are listed in the report as operating regularly against 21 a year ago. The passenger airways system has increased from approximately 25,000 miles to 32,803 miles Lighting of the airways, making night passenger and air mail operations possible, has increased during the past year to 16,000 miles from 12,000 twelve months ago.

The report says that marked progress has been made in equipping the airways with radio facilities whereby pilots receive weather information.

MANY KINDS OF FISH HERE

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—How many variety of fish are to be found in Ohio waters?

The state has many ardent fishermen, but probably few of them have any idea that its lakes and streams contain 157 more or less distinctive kinds of fishes.

A revised list of the fishes of Ohio, recently completed by Prof. Raymond C Osburn, head of the zoology and entomology department, Ohio State University; and Edward L. Wickliff and Milton B. Trautman, of the state division of conservation, adds more than a score of varieties. The last previous list, compiled in 1901 by Dr. Osburn, showed only 134 native and three introduced species

The present list includes 144 native varieties, four introduced species and nine additional subspecies of fishes known to occur in Ohio. A number of names have been dropped from the original Osburn list and others added as a result of more extensive collecting and more careful taxonomic study

Among the latter, a new black bass, "Micropterus pseudaplites," has been separated from the smallmouth bass. The river chub (Hybopsis Kentuckiensis) has been split into three species, two of which occur in Ohio, and suckers of the genus "Moxostoma" are now listed in six species instead of three as a result of further study.

The revised list of Ohio fish families with the number of varities in each, as printed in the last issue of the Ohio Journal of Science published at Ohio State University, follows: lampreys ,3; sturgeons, 2; paddlefishes, 1; gar pikes, 3; bowfins, 1; mooneyes, 2; herrings, 1; gizzard shads, 1; salmons and trouts, 4; whitefishes, 3; suckers, 21; minnows, 46; catfishes, 13, mud minnows, 1; pikes, 4; eels, 1, killifishes, 3; trout perches, 1; pirate perches, 1; white basses, 1, perches, 4; darters, 21; black basses and sunfishes, 14; silversides, 1, croakers and drumfishes, 1; sculpins, 2, sticklebacks, 1; and codfishes, 1.

FRUIT PROSPECTS GENERALLY POOR

Fewer apples and peaches but a few more pears is a prospect which the American public must face for 1930-31. Crop forecasts for early June, too early to be wholly trusted, indicate that the crop of apples will be 20 per cent below average, the peach crop three-fourths of its normal size, and the yield of pears only slightly larger than normal.

In Ohio the prospects of a crop are even darker, says C R. Arnold, extension economist for the Ohio State University. The condition of the apple crop in this state is the poorest in the country, and the estimated production of pears is 130,000 bushels and peaches 230,000 bushels. Last year the yield of peaches was 1,500,000 bushels.

Extremely cold winter weather is responsible for destroying the peach crop, says Arnold, and apples in general did not bloom very heavily in Ohio Late frosts and two months of drought reduced still further the crop prospects.

Only a few sections of the country report normal conditions. The North Atlantic States promise a good crop of apples and California expects a bumper crop of peaches.

OVER 6,000 AMERICANS TAKE AUTOMOBILES ON VACATIONS

The demand for transportation of automobiles has grown so strong that three of the world's largest steamer companies have made floating garages of one deck of their fastest liners.

The machines don't even have to be crated The tourist packs his family into the car, drives up the gang-plank, and drives off when he arrives at his destination

More than 6,000 Americans will take automobiles to Europe this summer, according to estimates of the American automobile association. And the majority of them are taking the so-called cheap machines, ranging between a thousand and fifteen hundred dollars in price. Next in the number of automobiles taken across this year come the higher price machine, from $1,500 up. Automobiles selling for less than a thousand dollars are last in the list.

Transportation for automobiles, according to a list of rates of several steamship companies, costs about $300 for the round trip. Ther are handled as excessive baggage, virtually, and a flat rate based on weight or cubic footage exacted.

Most of the technical troubles which until recently were met by those rare tourists who took automobiles with them across the ocean have been eliminated. Steamship lines and auto clubs handle the details now. There is not even the trouble of arranging for licenses as one rides about from one country to another. simple certificates, known as "triptyques" are furnished, and when given to customs officials on the borders of each country are accepted as customs guarantee. In countries where an American license is not accepted, an "international pass," is provided, authorizing the driver to operate a machine in 15 of the most important countries of Europe.

Except for the left side driving custom of some countries it is virtually as easy as driving at home and there are no speed limits in many European countries.

Gasoline is higher in Europe but it is not exhorbitant, and according to estimates will provide travel about as cheaply as railroads.

Touring seasons vary in the countries abroad, but information is easily obtainable at any of the foreign automobiles clubs.

Hill's size-up of the aviation industry seems to be borne out, especially as regards its bright future, by information obtained in other sources.

Passenger carrying airplanes in the United States are now flying 91,361 miles a day and are serving 226 communities on 263 regular schedules, according to the semi-annual report of the American Air Transport Association. A year ago but 61,025 miles were being flown and passenger carrying aircraft stopped daily at only 151 points.

Thirty-nine companies are listed in the report as operating regularly against 21 a year ago. The passenger airways system has increased from approximately 25,000 miles to 32,803 miles. Lighting of the airways, making night passenger and air mail operations possible, has increased during the past year to 16,000 miles from 12,000 twelve months ago.

The report says that marked progress has been made in equipping the airways with radio facilities whereby pilots receive weather information.

MANY KINDS OF FISH HERE

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—How many variety of fish are to be found in Ohio waters?

The state has many ardent fishermen, but probably few of them have any idea that its lakes and streams contain 157 more or less distinctive kinds of fishes.

A revised list of the fishes of Ohio, recently completed by Prof. Raymond C. Osburn, head of the zoology and entomology department, Ohio State University; and Edward L. Wickliff and Milton B. Trautman, of the state division of conservation, adds more than a score of varieties. The last previous list, compiled in 1901 by Dr. Osburn, showed only 134 native and three introduced species.

The present list includes 144 native varieties, four introduced species and nine additional subspecies of fishes known to occur in Ohio. A number of names have been dropped from the original Osburn list and others added as a result of more extensive collecting and more careful taxonomic study.

Among the latter, a new black bass, "Micropterus pseudaplites," has been separated from the smallmouth bass. The river chub (Hybopsis Kentuckiensis) has been split into three species, two of which occur in Ohio, and suckers of the genus "Moxostoma" are now listed in six species instead of three as a result of further study.

The revised list of Ohio fish families with the number of varities in each, as printed in the last issue of the Ohio Journal of Science published at Ohio State University, follows: lampreys ,3; sturgeons, 2; paddlefishes, 1; gar pikes, 3; bowfins, 1; mooneyes, 2; herrings, 1; gizzard shads, 1; salmons and trouts, 4; whitefishes, 3; suckers, 21; minnows, 46; catfishes, 13; mud minnows, 1; pikes, 4; eels, 1; killifishes, 3; trout perches, 1; pirate perches, 1; white basses, 1; perches, 4; darters, 21; black basses and sunfishes, 14; silversides, 1; croakers and drumfishes, 1; sculpins, 2; sticklebacks, 1; and codfishes, 1.

A Sextette

Four enemies are fighting the home, according to Edward Sapir of Chicago university: The cramped modern dwelling, the motor car, the independence of woman and labor saving devices. He should add the neighbor's radio and the fellow who distributes dodgers.—Los Angeles Times.

Why Worry About Worry?

A journalist once inquired of a Chinese patriarch why it is that the Chinese people do not worry. The Chinese philosopher replied that that was something he never worried about.

FRUIT PROSPECTS GENERALLY POOR

Fewer apples and peaches but a few more pears is a prospect which the American public must face for 1930-31. Crop forecasts for early June, too early to be wholly trusted, indicate that the crop of apples will be 20 per cent below average, the peach crop three-fourths of its normal size, and the yield of pears only slightly larger than normal.

In Ohio the prospects of a crop are even darker, says C. R. Arnold, extension economist for the Ohio State University. The condition of the apple crop in this state is the poorest in the country, and the estimated production of pears is 130,000 bushels and peaches 230,000 bushels. Last year the yield of peaches was 1,500,000 bushels.

Extremely cold winter weather is responsible for destroying the peach crop, says Arnold, and apples in general did not bloom very heavily in Ohio. Late frosts and two months of drought reduced still further the crop prospects.

Only a few sections of the country report normal conditions. The North Atlantic States promise a good crop of apples and California expects a bumper crop of peaches.

OVER 6,000 AMERICANS TAKE AUTOMOBILES ON VACATIONS

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Luxury loving America is taking its automobiles on European trips in increasing numbers.

The demand for transportation of automobiles has grown so strong that three of the world's largest steamer companies have made floating garages of one deck of their fastest liners.

The machines don't even have to be crated. The tourist packs his family into the car, drives up the gang-plank, and drives off when he arrives at his destination.

More than 6,000 Americans will take automobiles to Europe this summer, according to estimates of the American automobile association. And the majority of them are taking the so-called cheap machines, ranging between a thousand and fifteen hundred dollars in price. Next in the number of automobiles taken across this year come the higher price machine, from $1,500 up. Automobiles selling for less than a thousand dollars are last in the list.

Transportation for automobiles, according to a list of rates of several steamship companies, costs about $300 for the round trip. Ther are handled as excessive baggage, virtually, and a flat rate based on weight or cubic footage exacted.

Most of the technical troubles which until recently were met by those rare tourists who took automobiles with them across the ocean have been eliminated. Steamship lines and auto clubs handle the details now. There is not even the trouble of arranging for licenses as one rides about from one country to another, simple certificates, known as "triptyques" are furnished, and when given to customs officials on the borders of each country are accepted as customs guarantee. In countries where an American license is not accepted, an "international pass," is provided, authorizing the driver to operate a machine in 15 of the most important countries of Europe.

Except for the left side driving custom of some countries it is virtually as easy as driving at home and there are no speed limits in many European countries.

Gasoline is higher in Europe but it is not exhorbitant, and according to estimates will provide travel about as cheaply as railroads.

Touring seasons vary in the countries abroad, but information is easily obtainable at any of the foreign automobiles clubs.

A third spent forty-eight years in the institution and never asked for anything except "train fare to Carlisle."

Telling the Book by Its Cover

Again, a rule is broken. Here is an instance of being able to judge the Unknown by the Known. When we see a house that has been "Kept-Up" and boasts trim awnings and curtains, and a neat lawn—and then we see the inhabitants outside of the house—a happy, comfortable-looking family—we can picture the furnishings of that house. They will be in perfect taste. They will be friendly and charming. They will show homey usage, but will not appear "worn." They will be the kind of furniture sold by Stevenson's—the highest quality, but purchased with economy. Don't wait for us to have sales. We won't have them. We sell furniture at sales-prices NOW—at all times.

HOOVER'S CONGRESS BREAKS ALL RECORDS FOR EXPENSE

WASHINGTON, — The late speaker Tom Reed, who once stilled criticism of Congress having appropriated a billion dollars by asserting "this is a billion dollar country" would have to revise his statement could he scan what the 71st congress accomplished in the spending line in its first session.

Figures compiled today showed the first Congress of the Hoover administration to have broken all peace-time records for appropriations. The actual total was $4,924,929,233, which was $23,765,151 less than the Hoover budget recommended.

The fiscal record of Congress promises to become a battling point in the forthcoming congressional elections, the Democrats charging an "orgy of extravagance," and the Republicans defending the record, although the amount represents $208,692,465 more than the last Coolidge Congress.

Greater outlays for public works, the farm board, rivers and harbors works, and miscellaneous expenditures accounted for most of the increases.

Senator Jones (R) of Washington, chairman of the senate appropriations committee declared the government started the new fiscal year July 1 with a treasury surplus of $184,000,000 and that during the last fiscal year the public debt had been reduced $746,000,000.

He listed the following items of authorized expenditure as having merit and giving justification to the increase in the appropriations over the preceding congress.

Agricultural marketing act, $100,000,000; Co-operative construction of post roads; $32,400,000; River and Harbor Work; $17,000,000; Public Building and purchase of sites, $19,704,000, a total of $169,104,500.

Jones emphasized other increases "the purpose of which are wise and necessary," as follows:

Veteran's bureau, $28,700,000, Gold Star Mothers' pilgrimage to Europe, $5,386,367; commencement of Boulder Dam construction, $10,660,000, and to meet the growing needs of the post office department, $22,167,352, a total of $66,913,719.

"The financial affairs of our country have been well cared for during the second session of the 71st Congress" Jones concluded. "We have kept well within the budget etimates. After the very closest scrutiny by the President, through the bureau of the budget, the committees on appropriations of the senate and the House of Representatives by the taking of thousands of pages of printed hearings, and by the House of Representatives and the Senate, the appropriations have been made on the most careful and economical lines and without extravagance, and only in keeping with the strictest growing needs of a great and developing country."

TOMATO AND CORN GROWERS COMPETE

Prizes, Bonuses and Medals Offered By Canneries To Stimulate Yields.

Seven hundred tomato growers and 500 sweet corn farmers are attempting to grow large crops this year in Ohio, to profit by the offer of canneries to give bonuses for crops of more than 10 tons to the acre and corn yields of five or more tons.

The farmer whose field of corn or tomatoes is judged best also will receive a gold watch valued at $150 for first prize: second prize is $50 and third $25. Both projects are sponsored by the extension service of the Ohio State University.

All farmers in the contest whose fields produce ten or more tons of tomatoes to an acre, or two acres, will receive a bonus of 50 cents a ton for the whole crop; and farmers whose yields average 15 tons will receive a bonus of one dollar. A five-ton yield of sweet corn entitles the farmer to a 50-cent bonus. The corn growers are limited in their entries to five acres

Besides the watch and money prizes, medals will be given to successful contestants. A gold medal, also donated by the canneries, will be presented to growers of 20 tons of tomatoes to the acre; a 15-ton yield merits a silver medal and a 10-ton yield a bronze. The corn growers also receive gold, silver and bronze medals for 7-, 6-, and 5-ton yields.

Where Montcalm Died

One of the landmarks of Lower Town (the old part of the city of Quebec) is the little cigar store on St. Louis street, once the residence of a Doctor Arnoux, where the French commander, Montcalm mortally wounded in the battle of the Plains of Abraham, was brought, and where he died. His remains were buried in a hole in the wall of the Ursuline convent chapel.

"Castles in Spain"

The expression, "castles in Spain," is from the expression Chateau en Espagne, found in 1400-1600, occasionally as a Gallicism in modern times. It appears that the phrase at bottom meant only to build castles in a foreign country where one had no standing-ground, Spain being finally taken as the nearest Moorish country to Christendom, or perhaps with some reference to the arms of Castile.

HARD-SOFT LARGE-SMALL CORNS

Out To Stay Out—Roots and All
Magic Oxygen Salts Bath Never Fails.
No More Burning Aching Feet.

No matter how many corns you have or how painful they are—soak your feet for 15 minutes in a delightfully soothing and revitalizing Radox footbath for 3 or 4 nights—then lift corns and callouses right out—roots and all and they won't come back either unless you wear shoes again which aggravate your feet.

No cutting or digging is required because Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layers of corns, each night penetrating the pores further and further, carrying the salts right to roots of corns which are so loosened they can be lifted out bodily.

Your feet are made strong—healthy—vigorous—hard skin on heels and toes goes also.

Hamilton & Ryan and all good drug stores are stocked with Radox—if they aren't insist upon them ordering it if you want to experience great foot-joy and comfort.—Advt.

A five-ton yield of sweet corn entitles the farmer to a 50-cent bonus. The corn growers are limited in their entries to five acres.

Besides the watch and money prizes, medals will be given to successful contestants. A gold medal, also donated by the canneries, will be presented to growers of 20 tons of tomatoes to the acre; a 15-ton yield merits a silver medal and a 10-ton yield a bronze. The corn growers also receive gold, silver and bronze medals for 7-, 6-, and 5-ton yields.

Where Montcalm Died

One of the landmarks of Lower Town (the old part of the city of Quebec) is the little cigar store on St. Louis street, once the residence of a Doctor Arnous, where the French commander, Montcalm, mortally wounded in the battle of the Plains of Abraham, was brought, and where he died. His remains were buried in a hole in the wall of the Ursuline convent chapel.

English Public Schools

The public school system of England was introduced by the Foster education act of 1870. Before the public schools were introduced into England the schools were largely denominational.

Hole

A property owner went to inspect one of his houses and found that some scamp had stolen the building, leaving only the cellar. This would seem to leave a whole lot to be looked into.

Ambassador Morrow Welcomed to Mexico

U. S. Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow is shown shaking hands with his native chauffeur, Sabastian Saavedra, when the former arrived at Mexico City after a long stay in the United States. While in the States a grandson was born to the Ambassador and he also won the Republican Senatorial nomination in New Jersey. Officials of the country who went to the railroad station to greet the popular diplomat are also shown.

47 STATES AT O. S. U.

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—Ohio State University drew its student body last year from 47 states, 14 foreign lands and five American colonies, according to the annual census as reported by Miss Edith Cockins, registrar. All of the continents save Africa were included in the resident attendance of 14-495 students. Nevada was the only state not represented.

There was a slight increase in the proportion of students from outside Ohio. Twelve hundred and seventy two students, or 18.8 per cent of the total, were non-Ohioans. A year ago they formed 18.2 per cent of the total.

Chinese constituted the largest delegation of foreign students with 52. Canadians were second with ten. Other lands were represented as follows: Argentina 3, Australia 1, Austria 1, Bermuda 1, Columbia 1, Czechslovakia, 1, England 1, France 4, Germany 1, India 2, Japan 5, and Peru 1.

The states were represented as follows: Alabama 6, Arizona 1, Arkansas 4, California 6, Colorado 4, Connecticut 23, Delaware 2, Florida 17, Georgia 4, Idaho 1, Ilinois 59, Indiana 100, Iowa 21, Kansas 17, Kentucky, 35, Louisana 5, Maine 4, Maryland 5, Massachusetts 33, Michigan 29, Minnesota 11, Mississippi 7, Missouri 18, Montana 1, Nebraska 6, New Hampshire 8, New Jersey 114, New Mexico 1, New York 128, North Carolina 14, North Dakota 3, Ohio 13,223, Oklahoma 5, Oregon 4, Pennsylvania 217, Rhode Island 2, South Carolina 9, South Dakota 4, Tennessee 15, Texas 16, Utah 2, Vermont 2, Virginia 20, Washington 7, West Virginia 148, Wisconsin 14, Wyoming 3, and District of Columbis 11.

U. S. colonies and dependencies, Canal Zone 2, Hawaii 4, Phillippines 8, Porto Rico 7, and Virgin Islands 1.

"Castles in Spain"

The expression, "castles in Spain," is from the expression Chateau en Espagne, found in 1400-1600, occasionally as a Gallicism in modern times. It appears that the phrase at bottom meant only to build castles in a foreign country where one had no standing-ground, Spain being finally taken as the nearest Moorish country to Christendom, or perhaps with some reference to the arms of Castile.

No matter how many corns you have or how painful they are—soak your feet for 15 minutes in a delightfully soothing and revitalizing Radox footbath for 3 or 4 nights—then lift corns and callouses right out—roots and all and they won't come back either unless you wear shoes again which aggravate your feet.

No cutting or digging is required because Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layers of corns, each night penetrating the pores further and further, carrying the salts right to roots of corns which are so loosened they can be lifted out bodily.

Your feet are made strong—healthy—vigorous—hard skin on heels and toes goes also.

Hamilton & Ryan and all good drug stores are stocked with Radox—if they aren't insist upon them ordering it if you want to experience great foot-joy and comfort.—Advt.

PAN-EUROPA

Replies are coming in from the 26 nations invited by Aristide Briand to join a European union, and about half of the number are said to have responded favorably More are expected. There are various reservations, but most of them are not considered insurmountable So something may come of Briand's dream, after all.

The nations heard from so far, however, are mostly the smaller ones, who would naturally seek the shelter of a big organization Russia has not been invited The position that Germany and Great Britain take will be supremely important, since the union cannot amount to much without them.

Not much is eard over there of the term commonly used here for the proposal, "The United States of Europe" Germany doesn't like that because it implies rivalry with us, and Germany wants to cultivate our friendship. Some of the other nations don't like it because they don't like us. But "Pan-Europa" is different.

That term begins to have something of the appeal in the Old World that Pan-America formerly had in the New World. Latterly we have grown a bit cold about it. We may revive interest if Pan-Europa becomes a reality.

THE DIME-COLLECTOR

Save the dimes, and the dollars will take care of themselves. Oscar Bodenhausen, a traveling salesman of St. Joseph, Mo., saved all his ten-cent pieces for 20 years so that he could take a fine, big tour some day. Now, just when most people are feeling broke, he's getting ready to start around the world. His dimes will pay for it And he never missed them, he says, when he slipped them into his little bank.

Bodenhausen should be well-equipped for tips, anyway, on his tour. Still, it will probably be awkward, even if he carries as many of his dimes in his pockets as John D. Rockerfeller. After consolidating a Scotch habit like that for 20 years, giving dimes to a porter or waiter must involve a surgical operation.

CYCLING

A delegate to a church convention in Cleveland surprised everybody by arriving from Chicago on a bicycle. He was an eighteen-year-old lad. Boys of that age are expected to come in fixtures

He said he had made the trip in two days. That means about 200 miles a day, which any old-timer will say is very good. The cyclist explained that the roads were very good, whic makes considerable difference.

Wouldn't it have been a touring paradise 30 years ago if young fellows had had today's roads to travel on? And now that they have that blessing, they want to go on four wheels, with no exercise except holding a steering wheel and changing an occassional tire.

The American editor replies that Boleshevism will have a much harder time of it in the United States than in other countries because the average workman here owns property, mills on his own homes and automobiles. "I'M not sure I believe you Craven, but I want to believe you," said Sayre. "Now listen; the proposition of your oriental friend and client, is blackmail, pure and simple, and will be treated as such if carried one step further Tell him this, and tell yourself the same thing. Moreover ,it doesn't at all rest with me. It would be better for you two precious scamps if it did. But if it is mentioned again, I shall take it straight to the trustees of Miss Duane's fortune and if you ask me, I will tell you that you'll not fare very well at their hands. They'll have it in for you far worse than I should ever dream of Now, will you advise the Holy Hindu of this phase of the matter, or shall I?"

"I'll look after it, Mr Sayre, and don't think I had——"

"I'm not going to think anything about you You're none of my business. But it is my business to see that Miss Duane is not blackmailed, whether at home or absent, and I shall look out for her interests in any and every way I have a right to."

Craven departed, and Rodney sat for a long time thinking Not about the Swami, he was beneath notice, so was Craven; but about the situation, the hopeless, fathomless situation

And then the telephone bell rang, and as I said in New York told him that he had managed to corral Fleming Stone and engage him, and that he would arrive at Knollwood Sunday evening.

Rodney was decidedly cheered up at the thought that the great detective was really coming to take up the case.

"Yes, Rodney. I'll show them to you, now."

"Never mind just now. They don't worry me a bit. I know they're not really compromising or that old heathen scum would make more of them. He sent Craven here to dig up some money for his silence about them. Oh, how can the Hilldale people stand for that old fraud?"

"And I think he set Lawlor on the hunt in Emily's room to find the pictures."

"Well, of course, Lawlor had a right to search her rooms in connection with the Pennington matter. But, yes, I think the Swami put a bee in the police bonnet about it. Haven't seen Lawlor since, have you?"

"No. Mr. Collins told them to find Emily before they began to suspect her of any wrongdoing of any sort."

"Collins has a way of putting things emphatically, hasn't he? Aunt Judy, tonight I'll go back to my own bedroom. Now that the wedding day is past, I'm convinced that something has happened to Emily. I hoped up to the last minute that it was one of her pranks, but if it had been, she would have been back here today. So it's foolish for me to keep up this farce of staying on the sofa until she returns. I have a little common sense, if I can't ferret out what has happened to her."

"What do you think, Rod?"

"I can't think I've thought until my brain is mush. Now I'm going to wait for Fleming Stone, and let him think for us. He must have had experience with mysterious disappearances and abductions of grown-up people."

"But if it is abduction, wouldn't the demand for ransom come to us by this time?"

"You'd think so, Aunt Judy. But it hasn't, and that makes it look as if abduction isn't the explanation. I hope it is, for then we could just pay the price and be done with it. Let's do all we can to help Mr. Stone, and nothing to bother or hinder him."

"Yes, of course. And I'll give [illegible] pretty great mate, so he'll be comfortable and well fixed [illegible] leaves tomorrow."

"Thought I'd stop and say goodby," he explained. "I found I was all ready to start, and I fidgeted about so, waiting, that I concluded to go along. The house is all shut up and I can't sit around all day."

He was very nervous and looked worn and weary, as if he had had a sleepless night.

"You poor boy," said Aunt Judy. "I think you are wise to get away as soon as you can. Now, you have a good breakfast, and then get an early start before all Hilldale is craning its neck after you. I know just how you feel and I'm sure you're doing wisely. Leave us an address so we can tell you when Emily comes back."

"I've no address as yet, other than my bankers', but they will always know where I am. I shall make some plans in the next few days, and I'll drop you a line. Mrs. Bell, so you'll know where I am. It's good of you to care."

"I've a notion to drive down to New York with you," said Lamb, looking thoughtful.

"Do, I'd be glad of company, and I'm a good driver."

"No," concluded Burton. "I'm not packed And, too, I'd rather stay till afternoon, and see the girls again."

"As you say Well, I'll be getting along. I won't try to say what I hope for you all—I'm—I'm pretty much all in."

With a few handshakes, he left them, speaking no further word.

Prall helped him into his car, and Pete Gibby also went out on the porch.

"Goodby," he said, noting the suitcases and hatboxes in the car. "Going right to the club?"

"Yes, or some hotel. I'll decide on the way down"

And Pennington drove off, sitting erect and firm behind his wheel.

"He's all right when he's alone," Gibby said, returning to the dining room, "but people seem to get on his nerves."

"No wonder," Rodney observed, "especially over here where he knows we have our own trouble."

"He's in a bad way," Lamb said. "I shouldn't have cared to ride with his driving. I spoke on an impulse."

"Oh, no," Gibby insisted "He started off like a born chauffeur. He'll be all right, once he's quit of these harrowing scenes and that empty house of his I never saw such a nervous man I suppose it's that artistic temperament. I don't see how his wife ever lived with him."

"Maybe it was because she couldn't that——"

"No, no," Aunt Judy interrupted Lamb's speech, "Pauline was just as temperamental herself They were happy together and understood each other Her trouble was all caused by her grief at her child's death When Jim gets away from all this and settles down somewhere, he'll get started down, probably into a new play, and regain his poise and balance"

"You're a wise woman, madam," said Mr Collins, bowing toward her "Your remarks [illegible] an [illegible] [illegible] be added that our friend may find some other temperamental soul who [illegible]"

The Pope in his environment, perhaps, finds it harder to realize that than we do to realize the perils of Bolshevism.

Socialism in any form requires a "proletariat"—a population of property-less people — as a soil to grow in. The man who acquires property thereby becomes in some degree a capitalist. He acquires a personal stake in the system which stands for the individual, rather than the collective, system of ownership and control.

High wages, savings in the bank, home-ownership, universal education, freedom of social and economic opportunity — these are the great natural safeguards America has raised against Bolshevism without ever thinking much about it.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinese is peculiar." And sometimes in a pessimistic mood we sort of wonder whether the United States Senate hasn't a little Chinese in it.

And then the telephone bell rang, and his friend in New York told him that he had managed to corral Fleming Stone and engage him, and that he would arrive at Knollwood Sunday evening.

Sayre was decidedly cheered up at the thought that the great detective was really coming to take up the case.

Himself a good organizer and an indefatigable worker, he could accomplish wonders in his own business or in fields with which he was familiar. But as a detective he knew absolutely nothing, and he didn't fool himself into thinking he did, as so many amateurs are fain to do.

Pete Gibby had vaunted his own powers a little, but of late he had subsided, for he found he had no practical knowledge of sleuthing in any of its phases.

Saturday evening, the evening of the intended wedding day, dragged.

But after dinner some Hilldale people had telephoned over for such of the young people as cared to to come to a small dance, and Betty and Nell wanted to go.

Gibby and Burton Lamb went with them, and Rodney sent regrets, saying he would stay with Aunt Judy.

She smiled at him, well knowing wild horses could not drag him away from Knollwood.

The two sat alone and talked after the others had gone. He told her of Stone's coming, and she, too, was glad.

"What do you suppose he'll do, Rod?" she asked.

"I haven't the least idea. I don't know whether he works alone or with a corps of assistants. I don't even know what sort of man he is. But he's recommended as the best in the country, so he's the one for us."

"He'll want to know everything, of course."

"Everything. Hold nothing back, Aunt Judy. If there's the least mite of information you've been keeping quiet, out with it to Stone. You can't expect him to get anywhere if we hold out on him. These Atlantic City pictures, whatever they are, must be shown to him. Get that? Never mind me, but take Stone right into your full confidence. Will you?"

"Yes, Rodney. I'll show them to you, now."

"Never mind just now. They don't worry me a bit. I know they're not really compromising or that old heathen scum would make more of them. He sent Craven here to dig up some money for his silence about them. Oh, how can the Hilldale people stand for that old fraud?"

"Well, of course, Lawlor had a right to search her rooms in connection with the Pennington matter. But, yes, I think the Swami put a bee in the police bonnet about it. Haven't seen Lawlor since, have you?"

"No. Mr. Collins told them to find Emily before they began to suspect her of any wrongdoing of any sort."

"Collins has a way of putting things emphatically, hasn't he? Aunt Judy, tonight I'll go back to my own bedroom. Now that the wedding day is past, I'm convinced that something has happened to Emily. I hoped up to the last minute that it was one of her pranks, but if it had been, she would have been back here today. So it's foolish for me to keep up this farce of staying on the sofa until she returns. I have a little common sense, if I can't ferret out what has happened to her."

"What do you think, Rod?"

"I can't think. I've thought until my brain is mush. Now I'm going to wait for Fleming Stone, and let him think for us. He must have had experience with mysterious disappearances and abductions of grown-up people."

"But if it is abduction, wouldn't the demand for ransom come to us by this time?"

"You'd think so, Aunt Judy. But it hasn't, and that makes it look as if abduction isn't the explanation. I hope it is, for then we could just pay the price and be done with it. Let's do all we can to help Mr. Stone, and nothing to bother or hinder him."

"Yes, of course. And I'll give him the pretty green suite, so he'll be comfortable and well fixed. Nell leaves tomorrow."

"Just as well. She's a dear girl in some ways, but if she took a notion to make up to Stone, she'd pester the life out of him. Lamb has to go home to-morrow, too. You see, he expected to leave on Sunday, after—after Emily and I had gone away. And he has important business engagements. Well, he could be of no use here. When we get Stone we won't need any other help."

Sunday was another beautiful, bright September day, another day of mocking emptiness to the hearts that yearned for their missing darling.

The girls had coffee in their rooms, but the men came down for breakfast and Aunt Judy was there to greet them.

Abel Collins drifted in, joined the group at the table, and then, to their surprise, Jim Pennington came.

"Thought I'd stop and say goodby," he explained. "I found I was all ready to start, and I fidgeted about so, waiting, that I concluded to go along. The house is all shut up and I can't sit around all day."

He was very nervous and looked worn and weary, as if he had had a sleepless night.

"You poor boy," said Aunt Judy. "I think you are wise to get away as soon as you can. Now, you have a good breakfast, and then get an early start before all Hilldale is craning its neck after you. I know just how you feel and I'm sure you're doing wisely. Leave us an address so we can tell you when Emily comes back."

"I've no address as yet, other than my bankers', but they will always know where I am. I shall make some plans in the next few days, and I'll drop you a line, Mrs. Bell, so you'll know where I am. It's good of you to care."

"I've a notion to drive down to New York with you," said Lamb, looking thoughtful.

"No," concluded Burton. "I'm not packed. And, too, I'd rather stay till afternoon, and see the girls again."

"As you say. Well, I'll be getting along. I won't try to say what I hope for you all—I'm—I'm pretty much all in."

With a few handshakes, he left them, speaking no further word.

Prall helped him into his car, and Pete Gibby also went out on the porch.

"Goodby," he said, noting the suitcases and hatboxes in the car. "Going right to the club?"

"Yes, or some hotel. I'll decide on the way down."

And Pennington drove off, sitting erect and firm behind his wheel.

"He's all right when he's alone," Gibby said, returning to the dining room, "but people seem to get on his nerves."

"No wonder," Rodney observed, "especially over here where he knows we have our own trouble."

"He's in a bad way," Lamb said. "I shouldn't have cared to ride with his driving. I spoke on an impulse."

"Oh, no," Gibby insisted. "He started off like a born chauffeur. He'll be all right, once he's quit of these harrowing scenes and that empty house of his. I never saw such a nervous man. I suppose it's that artistic temperament. I don't see how his wife ever lived with him."

"Maybe it was because she couldn't that——"

"No, no," Aunt Judy interrupted Lamb's speech, "Pauline was just as temperamental herself. They were happy together and understood each other. Her trouble ,was all caused by her grief at her child's death. When Jim gets away from all this and settles down somewhere, he'll get quieted down, probably write a new play, and regain his poise and balance."

"You're a wise woman, madam," said Abel Collins, bowing toward her. "Your remarks show acumen and wise prognostication. It might be added that our friend may find some other temperamental soul who will——"

If You Must Reduce, Do It Slowly

Give Your Body a Chance to Eliminate Tissues Broken Up by Diet and Exercise.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health New York City.

RECENT years have witnessed the evil effects of a diet craze. It might have resulted in making us a nation of underweight neurotics had it not been for the awakening of our good sense. Wholesome advice as to right methods of procedure has been accepted.

Every person who considers taking on some drastic reducing diet should first consult a competent physician and submit to his supervision. A too rapid reducing diet may cause much harm.

The breaking down of the fatty tissues when reducing too quickly, causes the body to be flooded with waste products. These poisonous substances accumulate to such an extent that they are incapable of being eliminated or counteracted.

The human frame requires a certain amount of adipose deposit. It supplies a reserve of energy, and acts as a desirable padding material to the other tissues. The whole system works better when lubricated by the fats we eat. It is most essential that growing children and young people have this reserve storage. It assists the body to recist disease.

Although tuberculosis has decreased of late years in general, it is only too true that it has increased alarmingly among young girls and women, between the ages of fifteen and twenty-four. It is significant that these are the ones who have become slaves to the slender figure fashion.

Overweight after maturity is another problem which is attracting much attention. This may be dangerous. While diet governs the body weight to a great extent, other factors like the action of the endocrine glands, and chronic disturbances of any function of the body may also affect it. This is certainly true in many cases of overweight.

Everyone has easy access to tables showing the average body weights for the individual height and age. When it is found there is a pronounced variation from normal weight, it must be suspected that some underlying cause demands discovery. This is certainly the case if the diet has been a proper one. Your doctor can probably determine this and will advise regarding it.

A reducing diet should be relatively low in fats and carbohydrates and relatively high in proteins. There must be not too much protein, but enough. By including in it also the necessary mineral salts, vitamins and bulk which fruits and the leafy vegetables afford, you are pretty sure to attain proper nourishment and a normal weight.

Sugars and starches must be cut down to a minimum. Creams, fatty meats and fish, butter and whole milk cheeses, rich sauces and dressings should be avoided. Cottage cheese is a very good substitute for other cheeses in a reducing diet.

Daily exercises should form the backbone of a reducing program, rather than a cutting down to too dangerously near a minimum food intake. Meals should be sufficiently bulky so that hunger is satisfied, and the organs of digestion and elimination are given something to work upon. If your daily food intake which is fuel for body energy is burned in the body, there should be no residue left to form undesirable fat.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Finished performances on the part of Basil Rathbone, Kay Johnson and Louise Dresser and a knowledge of good theatre upon the part of William de Mille, director, contribute to the success of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking picture, "This Mad World," current at the Cliftona Theatre.

A less competent cast and a less experienced director might easily have made a botch of this production which depicts in a single episode occurring between four o'clock of an afternoon and ten of the next morning, the age-old conflict between love and patriotism.

The action takes place during the German occupation of Alsace in the recent World War. Victoria, wife of a German general, is billeted in the home of a French woman and discovers from a photograph that Paul, the woman's son, is a French spy. When the son returns to visit his mother, Victoria attempts to notify the German headquarters but is thwarted by the plans of mother and son, the latter succeeding in luring her to a deserted chateau where he expects to put her out of the way.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

A complete rodeo, from bucking horses to trick rope - spinning, was staged by Director Robert De Lacy for "Pardon My Gun," Blythe's novel western comedy. Not a single feature of this type of out-of-doors entertainment was overlooked and many of the greatest rodeo stars in the country participated.

The MacFarlane Brothers, world's champion juvenile trick riders and ropers, who play important parts in the story of "Pardon My Gun," were a particularly bright feature of the rodeo with a remarkable exhibition of the feats which have earned for them badges, cups and silver belts at various rodoes during the past four years.

Other famous rodeo stars who contribute to the thrills were Han tributed to the thrills were Hank Potts, Kenny Cooper, Max Callahan, Lysle Cottrell, Buff Jones and Hank Keenan. An unexpectedly thrilling scene occurred when Kenny Cooper's bucking broncho reared and fell backward on top of his rider. Cooper held on, however, and when the animal regained his feet, he was still in the saddle. This thrill was caught in its entirety by the camera.

In addition to George Duryea and the MacFarlane Brothers, the cast of "Pardon My Gun" which will be at the Metropolitan Theatre on Friday and Saturday, includes Sally Star, Robert Edeson, Mona Ray, Lee Moran, Stompie, Harry Woods and Harry Watson.

AT THE GRAND

Friday evening will be the final performances of Mae Murray at the Grand theatre in "Peacock Alley". The story is based entirely in New York and its life among smart people.

Evelyn Brent and Regis Toomey will appear at the Grand Saturday only in "Framed", an action-crammed melodrama full of entertainment.

ARCHITECTURE COURSE LONG

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—Courses in architecture and in architectural engineering will require a minimum of five years instead of four as heretofore at Ohio State University, beginning next fall. Students previously enrolled in either course, however, will be able to complete them on the basis of the old four-year curricula.

Ohio State is the first university in the Middle West to require a minimum of five years for either course To qualify for degrees in both architecture and in architectural engineering Ohio State hereafter will require at least six years of study.

The changes were made, it was explained by Prof. Charles St. J Chubb, chairman of the department, "in response to the incessant demand of the architectural profession for more complete training in the colleges" The university's courses in law and dentistry, he pointed out, for some time have been on a sixyear basis, with seven years for medicine. Ohio State was the first university in the United State to require a minimum of four years for its course in pharmacy.

The step taken is in accord with the recommendations, Prof. Chubb added, of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Architetture. That body, he said, would probably require the five-year curriculum as its minimum standard.

About half of the additional time allotted in the new architecture curricula will be devoted to professional studies and the remainder to non-professional electives which must be taken outside the department. Architecture students will thus have an opportunity to take cultural, business and other broadening courses in their fourth and fifth years

FERTILIZER PEPS SUMMER PASTURES

Pasture lands respond to summer applications of commercial fertilizers, and their use suggests one method of getting good cow feed from the pasture in the summer.

On fairly good pasture lands one application of 150 pounds of sulfate of ammonia, or its equivalent in itrate of soda, broadcast over the pasture in late June or early July, will increase the production of grass, says, E. P. Reed, soils and crops specialist for the Ohio State University

When the pasture requires more than 150 pounds of fertilizer to an acre to stimulate the growth of grass, the application might better be split, suggests Reed, and applied at intervals of four or six weeks, depending on its need as indicated by the condition of the grass.

Little benefit will be had from the use of nitrogen if the pasture also is deficient in phosphorus and potash, says the specialist. When these elements are lacking, which is often the case according to Reed, they should be supplied in a 0-14-6 grade fertilizer, at the rate of 400 pounds to the acre. This amount broadcast at one time preferably in the early spring, should provide these elements for three or four years. They are not used as quickly as the nitrogen, Reed explains.

GROUP ENJOYS JULY MEETING

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood Has Fine Meeting In Parish House.

The July session of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood held last evening in the parish house in E Mound street was a decided success, though the climatic conditions were sweltering.

The meeting was opened by the audience singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," this being followed by scriptural reading and prayer by Rev. G. J. Troutman, D. D., after which all again joined in singing "My Faith Looks up to Thee."

The usual business procedure was then gone through with, after which Karl Herrmann and his committee served a buffet lunch of baked ham sandwiches, swiss cheese sandwiches, pickles and coffee.

Before the opening of the program of entertainment, Mrs. D. V. Courtright, accompanied by Miss Helen Bartholomew, county health nurse and Miss Folsom, county tuberculosis nurse, were introduced by President Griffith.

Mrs. Courtright in a brief period of time, gave a very thorough review of the work that has been done within the past few months toward eradication of tuberculosis in this county, she in turn introducing Miss Folsom, who gave a detailed report of her four months work here, and her findings were a revelation to the men of the brotherhood. One of the most startling things brought out in this report was that Pickaway-co ranks second higest in the number of tuberculosis patients

The general topic of the evening's program was "Signs" Jacob Scharenberg was first introduced, who talked very interesting and at length on "Farmer's Signs."

Interesting discussion followed and showed that there was a great diversity of opinion as to the significance of such signs.

J R. Noecker was next on the program. his subject being, "Dreams" Mr Noecker proved to his listeners that he was well posted on his topic.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, the last speaker on the program, George C. Griffith, asked to be excused

Mr Griffith's topic was "Commercial Signs" and it goes without saying, would have been a real treat as this is one of his hobbies

The next meeting will be held on the third Thursday in August. R L Brehmer will have charge of the athletics and is promising a real treat; J D Hummel will have charge of the story telling.

BELIEVE POLICE RADIO TO SPREAD TO LARGE CITIES

WASHINGTON,—A steady increase in demands of police agencies for radio permits today caused experts of the federal radio commission to predict that use of radio to combat bandit warfare will spread to every large center in the country.

State police organizations, following the lead of Michigan, also are expected to enter the field, using the radio to counter-act the advantage which the high-powered automobile has given to the escaping bandit.

By providing constant contact between central police stations and cruising autos, police agencies using the radio hope to relay information to the latter so quickly that many bandit cars can be intercepted after bank and other robberies.

With police broadcasting considered solely an experiment for several months, radio experts now say the present tendency indicates the experimental stage is passed and police radio service has become a permanent fixture.

Although the radio commission has set eight channels for police use, it is now predicted the service will spread to 150 cities and demands will be made for additional channels

Among the application now pending before the radio commission are: Buffalo, San Antonio, Township of Grosse Point, Mich.; Auburn, N. Y., Portland, Me., Rochester, N. Y., Akron, O., and Passaic, N J

Already the commission has licensed 15 police stations, has granted unconditional permits for erection of 11 stations, conditional permits for three more, and one to the state of Michigan.

In addition to the Michigan experiment in linking its state police forces by radio, Pennsylvania now has a radio telephone hook-up under which five stragetic points are in constant contact. Massachusetts has a station at Farmingham regarded as largely an experiment.

ARCHITECTURE COURSE LONG

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—Courses in architecture and in architectural engineering will require a minimum of five years instead of four as heretofore at Ohio State University, beginning next fall. Students previously enrolled in either course, however, will be able to complete them on the basis of the old four-year curricula.

Ohio State is the first university in the Middle West to require a minimum of five years for either course. To qualify for degrees in both architecture and in architectural engineering Ohio State hereafter will require at least six years of study.

The changes were made, it was explained by Prof. Charles St. J. Chubb, chairman of the department, "in response to the incessant demand of the architectural profession for more complete training in the colleges." The university's courses in law and dentistry, he pointed out, for some time have been on a sixyear basis, with seven years for medicine. Ohio State was the first university in the United State to require a minimum of four years for its course in pharmacy.

The step taken is in accord with the recommendations, Prof. Chubb added, of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture. That body, he said, would probably require the five-year curriculum as its minimum standard.

About half of the additional time allotted in the new architecture curricula will be devoted to professional studies and the remainder to non-professional electives which must be taken outside the department. Architecture students will thus have an opportunity to take cultural, business and other broadening courses in their fourth and fifth years.

FERTILIZER PEPS SUMMER PASTURES

Pasture lands respond to summer applications of commercial fertilizers, and their use suggests one method of getting good cow feed from the pasture in the summer.

On fairly good pasture lands one application of 150 pounds of sulfate of ammonia, or its equivalent in itrate of soda, broadcast over the pasture in late June or early July, will increase the production of grass, says, E. P. Reed, soils and crops specialist for the Ohio State University.

When the pasture requires more than 150 pounds of fertilizer to an acre to stimulate the growth of grass, the application might better be split, suggests Reed, and applied at intervals of four or six weeks, depending on its need as indicated by the condition of the grass.

Little benefit will be had from the use of nitrogen if the pasture also is deficient in phosphorus and potash, says the specialist. When these elements are lacking, which is often the case according to Reed, they should be supplied in a 0-14-6 grade fertilizer, at the rate of 400 pounds to the acre. This amount broadcast at one time preferably in the early spring, should provide these elements for three or four years. They are not used as quickly as the nitrogen, Reed explains.

GROUP ENJOYS JULY MEETING

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood Has Fine Meeting In Parish House.

The July session of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood held last evening in the parish house in E. Mound street was a decided success, though the climatic conditions were sweltering.

The meeting was opened by the audience singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," this being followed by scriptural reading and prayer by Rev. G. J. Troutman, D. D., after which all again joined in singing "My Faith Looks up to Thee."

The usual business procedure was then gone through with, after which Karl Herrmann and his committee served a buffet lunch of baked ham sandwiches, swiss cheese sandwiches, pickles and coffee.

Before the opening of the program of entertainment, Mrs. D. V. Courtright, accompanied by Miss Helen Bartholomew, county health nurse and Miss Folsom, county tuberculosis nurse, were introduced by President Griffith.

Mrs. Courtright in a brief period of time, gave a very thorough review of the work that has been done within the past few months toward eradication of tuberculosis in this county, she in turn introducing Miss Folsom, who gave a detailed report of her four months work here; and her findings were a revelation to the men of the brotherhood. One of the most startling things brought out in this report was that Pickaway-co ranks second higest in the number of tuberculosis patients.

The general topic of the evening's program was: "Signs" Jacob Scharenberg was first introduced, who talked very interesting and at length on "Farmer's Signs."

Interesting discussion followed and showed that there was a great diversity of opinion as to the significance of such signs.

J. R. Noecker was next on the program, his subject being, "Dreams." Mr. Noecker proved to his listeners that he was well posted on his topic.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, the last speaker on the program, George C. Griffith, asked to be excused.

Mr. Griffith's topic was "Commercial Signs" and it goes without saying, would have been a real treat as this is one of his hobbies.

The next meeting will be held on the third Thursday in August; R. L. Brehmer will have charge of the athletics and is promising a real treat; J. D. Hummel will have charge of the story telling.

He was given lodging and meals at the city building last night and started for Columbus this morning when he fell at the corner of Main and Court-sts.

BELIEVE POLICE RADIO TO SPREAD TO LARGE CITIES

WASHINGTON,—A steady increase in demands of police agencies for radio permits today caused experts of the federal radio commission to predict that use of radio to combat bandit warfare will spread to every large center in the country.

State police organizations, following the lead of Michigan, also are expected to enter the field, using the radio to counter-act the advantage which the high-powered automobile has given to the escaping bandit.

By providing constant contact between central police stations and cruising autos, police agencies using the radio hope to relay information to the latter so quickly that many bandit cars can be intercepted after bank and other robberies.

With police broadcasting considered solely an experiment for several months, radio experts now say the present tendency indicates the experimental stage is passed and police radio service has become a permanent fixture.

Although the radio commission has set eight channels for police use, it is now predicted the service will spread to 150 cities and demands will be made for additional channels.

Among the application now pending before the radio commission are: Buffalo, San Antonio, Township of Grosse Point, Mich.; Auburn, N. Y., Portland, Me., Rochester, N. Y., Akron, O., and Passaic, N. J.

Already the commission has licensed 15 police stations, has granted unconditional permits for erection of 11 stations, conditional permits for three more, and one to the state of Michigan.

In addition to the Michigan experiment in linking its state police forces by radio, Pennsylvania now has a radio telephone hook-up under which five stragetic points are in constant contact. Massachusetts has a station at Farmingham regarded as largely an experiment.

DOGGY WARD MOVES NEARER HALF TITLE EDGING C. C. OF A.

Victory By Score of 6-2 Puts Wardmen Full Game in Lead Over Gordons and Coca Colas—Red Owens Again Proves Too Tough With Men On the Paths While Mates Hit Opportunely.

Doggy Ward and his recreation ball players won their fifth victory last evening at Mason's park when they defeated the C. C. of A. by the score of 6 to 2.

This victory over the paper makers allows Doggy a tighter clinch for the first place position in the "rec" standing and shoves the Containers away down into the cellar with the Grocers.

The game Thursday was very interesting and well played.

Although there were seven errors on the part of the Mid-westmen the Wardmen scored all their runs on hits as they had 14 beautiful hits, one a triple.

Everything was quiet on the Potomac until the third inning, and up to this time those box makers and Wardmen had played airtight ball, but the tightness on the part of the Containers gave away in the third and they allowed Doggy's gang to get to their first run at this time. This run was obtained through several nice hits.

Then the boxers started swatting the ball in the last of the fourth, and as a matter of fact obtained several nice hits, sending a run over.

The old balloon went up in the fifth and the straw-board gang completely blew up, and started making terrible errors, the center fielder, the second baseman, the short stop and the third baseman one after the other, and together with a nice triple by Renick and several other nice hits by E. Imler and Hutchinson, the Wardmen scored three runs during this period, and now the score was 4 to 1.

And still the Wardmen weren't satisfied and for the second time came back in the sixth fray and scored two more runs by several nice hard drives into the outfield and these were their last two runs to be scored.

The Containers scored their last run in the eighth through several bad errors on the part of the Wardmen and the game ended 6-2, with Doggy on the long end.

SINGER WINS FROM CHAMP

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, July 18.—His arms outflung, his face distorted with unuttered pain, his sightless eyes staring up at the lights, Sammy Mandell lay stark upon the floor last night and was counted out of his world's lightweight championship in 1 minute 46 seconds of the first round. Stricken, he lay inert and unheeding, with the doleful count of 10 sounding in ears that heard not and a referee's arms waving before eyes that could not see.

Over in a neutral corner stood the champion-to-be, Al Singer, of New York, chattering and gibbering with the hysteria of one to whom the fairy story of life has come true. He literally was chuckle-headed with disbelief at his own good fortune and, when the count reached 10, he leaped high in the air, his mouth working strangely and odd sounds issuing from his lips. He is not as graceful as Nijinsky nor as handsome as Barrymore.

But he is a good champion and he won as a good champion should—with the punch.

It was almost a Dempsey climax, this punch, a sort of one-shot bull's eye that left the skipping, flitting human zepher that had been Sammy Mandell draped, all but lifeless, across the Axminster. Thrice more the stricken man was beaten down and, at last, he lay there unconscious, never to rise again in this fight.

LUTHERANS SCORE IN EARLY INNINGS TO DEFEAT GROCERS

Carl Radcliffe Hurls Good Ball In Winning 14-8 Contest For Brotherhood—Errors By Grocers Play Big Part In Lutheran Scoring.

The only reason for the defeat of the Independent Grocers at Utilities park Thursday evening was the fact that they started scoring too late, and in the meantime the Lutheran Brotherhood had taken advantage of their errors and had collected a few runs for themselves. The score was 14 to 8.

The Lutherans did not wait one minute to start scoring runs, as in the first two stanzas they brought seven men across the plate. The first two in the first frame were garnered through three bad errors on the Grocers' third baseman, and together with a couple of hits and some errors on the centerfielder the other five were scored in the second fray.

As a matter of fact the Lutherans scored in every inning with the exception of the fourth and sixth, when the batters did nothing but knock pop flies. The Grocers just played poor ball, and as Amos and Andy express it "the game got regusted," and lacked interest until the last few innings when the Grocers climbed out of the rut and started scoring.

The churchmen continued to swat the pill and sent a man across the rubber in the third, one in the fifth, two in the seventh, three in the eighth and one in the ninth making a total of 14 runs.

The Grocers had, however, garnered several runs, before they began their rally, one in the fourth and one in the fifth, and these runs were scored through continual hitting, as the Churchmen had very few errors marked against them.

In the last part of the eighth, two men were on, two were out and Mettler stepped to the plate and scored a nice hit, and brought a man across the platter and when the last man was put out by a strike-out it was discovered that the Grocerymen had obtained six runs in this fray. No one was able to do anything but pop up in the ninth and as a result the game ended with the Churchmen holding the long end of the score by a six point margin.

Cottie Radcliffe, a new man in pitching circles appeared on the mound and tossed good ball for the Brotherhood. He allowed four men on base free and had three strike-outs. Carl Purcell pitched for the Grocers.

With this defeat the Grocers, once thought to be a strong contender for the second half championship, go into a tight clinch with the C. C. of A. for the cellar position.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

To the Editor of The Circleville Herald:

The action of the City Council last Wednesday forbidding bathing at Dewey Park in the water of Darby Creek, suggests the query: Are we being furnished by The Ohio Water Service Company the water from Darby Creek?

It is a fact that the source of water originally furnished to Circleville came from a supply beneath Darby Creek. The Water Works was located where it is because there is a layer of hard-pan beneath the level of the bottom of the creek which separates the surface water from the deeper stream.

For years we bragged of the water here, and it was recognized by the State Health Department as free from all organic matter.

Instead of trying to keep Darby Creek clean—an impossibility as it is a sewer for all farms and towns above the water works—the Citizens of Circleville should see to it that the water furnished them comes from beneath the layer of hard-pan which separates the surface water from the under-ground stream, which was the original source of our supply and should be today.

DOGGY WARD MOVES NEARER HALF TITLE EDGING C. C. OF A.

Victory By Score of 6-2 Puts Wardmen Full Game in Lead Over Gordons and Coca Colas—Red Owens Again Proves Too Tough With Men On the Paths While Mates Hit Opportunely.

Doggy Ward and his recreation ball players won their fifth victory last evening at Mason's park when they defeated the C. C. of A. by the score of 6 to 2.

This victory over the paper makers allows Doggy a tighter clinch for the first place position in the "rec" standing and shoves the Containers away down into the cellar with the Grocers.

The game Thursday was very interesting and well played.

Although there were seven errors on the part of the Mid-westmen the Wardmen scored all their runs on hits as they had 14 beautiful hits, one a triple.

Everything was quiet on the Potomac until the third inning, and up to this time those box makers and Wardmen had played airtight ball, but the tightness on the part of the Containers gave away in the third and they allowed Doggy's gang to get to their first run at this time. This run was obtained through several nice hits.

Then the boxers started swatting the ball in the last of the fourth, and as a matter of fact obtained several nice hits, sending a run over.

The old balloon went up in the fifth and the straw-board gang completely blew up, and started making terrible errors, the center fielder, the second baseman, the short stop and the third baseman one after the other, and together with a nice triple by Renick and several other nice hits by E. Imler and Hutchinson, the Wardmen scored three runs during this period, and now the score was 4 to 1.

And still the Wardmen weren't satisfied and for the second time came back in the sixth fray and scored two more runs by several nice hard drives into the outfield and these were their last two runs to be scored.

The Containers scored their last run in the eighth through several bad errors on the part of the Wardmen and the game ended 6-2, with Doggy on the long end.

SINGER WINS FROM CHAMP

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, July 18.—His arms outflung, his face distorted with unuttered pain, his sightless eyes staring up at the lights, Sammy Mandell lay stark upon the floor last night and was counted out of his world's lightweight championship in 1 minute 46 seconds of the first round. Stricken, he lay inert and unheeding, with the doleful count of 10 sounding in ears that heard not and a referee's arms waving before eyes that could not see.

Over in a neutral corner stood the champion-to-be, Al Singer, of New York, chattering and gibbering with the hysteria of one to whom the fairy story of life has come true. He literally was chuckle-headed with disbelief at his own good fortune and, when the count reached 10, he leaped high in the air, his mouth working strangely and odd sounds issuing from his lips. He is not as graceful as Nijinsky nor as handsome as Barrymore.

But he is a good champion and he won as a good champion should—with the punch.

It was almost a Dempsey climax, this punch, a sort of one-shot bull's eye that left the skipping, flitting human zephier that had been Sammy Mandell draped, all but lifeless, across the Axminster. Thrice more the stricken man was beaten down and, at last, he lay there unconscious, never to rise again in this fight.
